

Christopher Thomas Engel

December 5, 2023

Christopher Thomas Engel left this Earth to find peace on Tuesday, December 5, 2023.

He is survived by his father John Engel and mother Dawn (Lupp) Engel of Harrisburg, brother Jonathan Engel and wife Elizabeth of Middletown, parental grandparents Joseph and Mary Engel of Monroeville and maternal grandparents Robert and Wanda Lupp of State College, two adoring cats Winnie and Humphrey, and numerous other family and extended family members. He was greeted in the afterlife by his maternal uncle, Matthew Mortimore.

Born in Harrisburg on April 12, 1997, Chris, who always did his best to live with a smile on his face, fought hard to find the light within himself.

Christopher struggled with depression and he fought hard. It was a struggle for Chris to find the good that we all could see so strongly, the witty funny guy we all cherished.

During his twenty-six years, he found ways to make people laugh, always sharing the best of puns. He enjoyed playing music to warm the soul and constantly gave to others. He loved his family, friends, and two wonderful cats.

Some of his hobbies were disc golfing with his brother, golfing with family and friends, game nights, trying new brews, seeing live music, playing open mics, building custom guitar pedals, cooking, and constantly doodling. One is lucky to say they had a cup of Chris's joe over the years since making and sharing coffee brought him so much joy.

Chris had a spirit that soared to great heights during his brightest moments as witnessed by his close friends and dear family members. Whether giving good-natured grief or debating the various virtues of musical genres, Chris was an animated conversationalist, passionate musician, and intelligent orator. He also enjoyed discussing world events and was always steadfast in his political convictions.

The COVID pandemic presented a unique experience for Chris. Whereas college for most people is the start of separate lives after moving out of the nest, Chris chose to move out of his shoebox college apartment into the warm and caring home of his brother and future sister-in-law. Chris strengthened his brotherly bond with Jonathan and became closer with Elizabeth. The three of them were greatly impacted by these few months, creating memories that all will hold dear for years to come.

Following his graduation from the University of Pittsburgh in 2020, Chris was employed as an electrical engineer at Pittsburgh-based Mosebach Manufacturing, where he was truly a rising star. He was a great communicator with excellent technical knowledge that enabled him to quickly become the face of the company with customers and vendors. To his colleagues, Chris was an incredible guy who always carried a smile on his face, giving a cheerful "howdy" as he passed by. He could effortlessly make them laugh and strike up conversation with anyone. Chris was wise and experienced well beyond his years.

Chris always said he'd reward anyone with a warm hug for returning what he had lost, so let's all return what we've lost in a way that would make him proud.

The family will honor Chris in an upcoming Celebration of Life ceremony:

“ Chris was one of the first friends I met at Pitt. We had some classes together my first semester, decided to study together, and quickly became friends. He invited me to some of the first DIY shows I went to in Pittsburgh, and introduced me to some amazing bands that I still listen to today. Even though I was truly terrible at it, he patiently taught me to play some songs on guitar, and was my go-to guy to change the strings until I was confident enough to do it myself. He even came by my house over winter break to help, even though I lived 2 hours away! We drifted apart after that first year, but I still loved seeing his band play when I got the chance (Like that time they opened for T-Pain!). Even though we didn't spend all that much time together in the grand scheme of things, his presence still had such a great positive influence on me, and it's heartbreaking that no one else will have the chance to get to know him now. May his soul be at peace, and sending much love to his close friends and family at this time. 💜

“ being a regular at St Thomas Roasters and working next door at Mellow Minded Cafe, Chris and I quickly became buddies. I will forever cherish and miss walking in to STR seeing Chris, knowing I didn't have to make a decision for myself about what I was going to drink that day. He would just throw something together for me, or on the days he knew I was working would walk over and surprise me with a much needed pick me up. A perfect example of his wonderful character.

“ Chris was a remarkable young man. I enjoyed seeing him at the coffeeshop and Friday evenings when he would perform there. If, I remember, he called it "Chris and Friends". Such a talented young man gone too soon. RIP, you will not be forgotten.

“ Chris was such a light in this world. One of the absolute funniest human beings I'd ever met with a sense of humor that was one of a kind. All of the memories we shared were that of laughter and making music. He was such a talented soul. I will always cherish the time we had together and the memories made.

“ This past summer, I met Chris at an outdoor karaoke event being held by our mutual friend. He was quiet as our friend introduced us, and I was skeptical when he took the mic. Then he began to sing. I'm no expert, but his voice was so surprisingly clean and beautiful. My mouth dropped. He finished the song, and I told him how incredible he sounded. Though his ball cap veiled his eyes a bit, I could see the sparkle. He knew he had a gift, yet he was humble in accepting my compliments. I only saw him at one other karaoke event a few months after this first meeting, but his kindness and light were very much visible both of those evenings.

I lament that I only had the brief pleasure of having my ears blessed by Chris' voice. I wish any amount of syllables could soothe those closest to him, but I understand the pain of losing him is too great to be calmed by words. I'm sure his family already knows that he was a blessing to strangers he met only once or twice. What a testament to the love he was given by them; I truly believe a person reflects the love they receive back into the world. Thank you to his family for sharing him with us. May you all be blessed with memories and the love of each other during the coming months, though I know the grief will go on in perpetuity.

“ Chris was a wonderful guy. As Sales Manager at Mosebach, he was developing that ability to talk from a sales approach, but also had that superior technical ability to wade through difficult topics that I just was lost in. God Bless Chris and his entire family.
