“ Dylan and I knew each other for quite a number of years. Along the way was much mischief and alot of laughs. Not always though. There were many a time when we could have serious and important discussions about our lives and our loved ones. He could be a very complex person. Extremely intelligent and quite insightful! He cared very deeply for those whom he was close to. I know how deeply he was hurt by the loss of his brother. They weren't twins but you'd never have known it. Rarely have I seen two brothers closer than than they were. The man loved his wife, Cher with all his heart and I was elated when he found her and they were married. It seemed to change a huge part of him, for the better. I believe that now he can finally be at peace. Rest easy my friend and know that you are deeply missed and fondly remembered by all that knew you.

“ I've considered Dylan a friend of mine for many years. We had all kinds of exciting adventures throughout. He was one of the most kind-hearted and intelligent guys I've had the pleasure of knowing. He fought long and hard to be everything everyone wanted him to be. Deep down he remained true to himself and his close loved ones. I was delighted to hear when he met and married the love of his life, Cher. He loved her deeply. He was grateful to have had Justin and Mary Eileen as his mother and brother. I feel that now he is truly at peace. May you rest in eternal peace my friend.
