“ We worked together for many years in heat, the cold, and noise. Sometimes, high above the ground, in a constant sweat all day long. As bad as most of those days were, Les, it was always better when I was working with you. I'm sorry you left us all too soon, Les. You will always be missed. Many younger men have learned many skills from you, Les. Those young men will share what you taught them with the new guy on the job and tell some Les stories. Rest in peace, my friend

“ “My brother from another mother”, often a cliché uttered by friends who share a moment of male bonding. Getting to know Les over the last six years provided far more than a passing casual moment of agreement. Les and I were so very different in background, education, occupation and political views. However, the rough and tumble Navy veteran and Steel mill retiree could not hide his teddy bear nature. Les was always caring, thoughtful and willing to engage with me on topics political and our family lives. The task was easy for Les because his compassion for others was strong. We had trust and mutual respect to share. Oftentimes, the more difficult conversation provided for a deeper appreciation for our relationship. Before Les disclosed his illness I had told him I loved him while I hugged him goodbye. I told Les I loved him even more often after learning of his health challenges. I will forever appreciate our friendship. I miss you and love you !

“ Connie and I met Les on our very first night as members of the IAC. He was being very clear about some views of his and we agreed 100%. Really made us feel at home! That never stopped. We were always glad to see him and he seemed glad to see us. He was always kind, interesting, interested, and often amusing. He loved the club and served it well. We already miss him. Another good man, good friend gone too soon. Jack and Connie Wilson

“ I'm very sorry to hear of Les's passing. I worked with Les for more than half of my career with US steel. We got hired the same day. He was a good pipe fitter with good leadership. We shared good times in and out of work. With heartfelt sympathy to Sue and the family.
