“ We lived near Paul and Kate for 10 years, moving away from the area five years ago. Because both families had vizslas (the type of dog pictured with Paul), that was an instant bond as they are fairly uncommon. In many ways, Paul was an old-fashioned man. He was often the strong, silent type. He was what we used to call a good man! He was very loyal, to his country (we thank him for his service), to his family, and to his career.

Paul loved his family more than anything, and took care of them in ways big and small. But he did everything without a fuss, not the type to call attention to himself in any way.

On the weekends, we would walk our dogs past their house. If anyone was outside, we would unleash our dogs so they could have a play date. And, at the same time, we would then be able to visit with Paul and Kate. Paul was almost always to be found outside working on his yard, mowing or tending the flowers. This was a matter of pride and joy for him, and it showed.

He will be missed, and our thoughts and prayers go out to him, Kate, Eve and Zach.

What a wonderful story. It's funny to me because in high school he was quiet too. Nice guy. Sorry to hear of his passing. Condolences to his family. God bless him.

It's been two years and the truth is that it's still so unreal that he's not here anymore. His gardens are still growing; his puppy is now a dog, and his family still expects to see him in the home he took comfort in. May we remember the love he showed in so many quiet ways. Memory Eternal. Rest your oars, Seaman.
