Tribute Wall

“ I met Sue Ann at Gateway high school, when she was president of the whole school (not just our class). We roomed together for a term at Penn State, where she endeared herself to my sorority sisters (she's pictured here with one). Later I visited her when she lived in Florida for a time.

Sue was the most fun, outrageous person, who was also the hardest worker and the truest friend. The oldest of eight children, she was a devoted mother and her boys were very good to her.

It's extra sad that Sue left us just before she got to meet her first granddaughter. I am certain her spirit will live on in her family and all who loved her. I can still hear her throaty laugh and see her sparkly eyes.

(I got this news on All Souls Day / The Day of the Dead. Sue has been added to my altar.)
